The republican powder is dry this campaign and none is being wasted.

The democratic brigade doesn't receive many recruits now days. Voters don't like to enlist for defeat.

One of the unfortunate features of the democratic campaign is that the party can't change its spots. It is the same old party, and somehow the people won't forget it.

There are no "findings of comfort and joy" for the democrats from the Green Mountain state. The republican party seems to be doing a thriving business at the old stand.

The cold winds of Greenfield won't be a circumstance to the chills the democrats will receive next November. They will feel like going on an Arctic expedition to get warm.

There are over 18,000 uniformed

Blaine and Logan clubs in this country, ten times more than there are Cleveland and Hendricks clubs. This is why the democrats do not find more comfort in the campaign.

It is undignified for the democratic candidates to talk in this campaign the party should send to Hendricks. Logan is meeting with tremendous orations all along the line, and Hendricks should see how much public enthusiasm he can stir up.

If the Money letter was not a forgery, why do not some of the democratic leaders who are charged with uttering it come out with positive denials, backed by indubitable evidence to support the denial. Silence much longer will lead the people to believe that they can not other they dare not.

Mr. Hendricks is trying the Irish of Indiana tally. They have been sickened by tally and didn't like it. Tens of thousands of them are marching in the republican procession and propose to sit down at the republican dinner of turkey and victory next November. They have attended enough democratic funerals, and now propose to join the jubilee band.

—The democratic state convention will meet next Wednesday, and will probably nominate Mr. Pratt for governor.

He is the best man the democrats have for the position, but why not sacrifice some one else this time? To set him up to be defeated the third time isn't just to Mr. Pratt. Why not give Colonel Blaine may stop it in 1884.—Chicago Times.

This is a cowardly way of shielding the democratic investigating committee in 1876. The Times knows full well why Proctor Knott did not report on the Mulligan business. When Blaine read those letters before the house on the 5th of June, 1876, and marched "down the hall of congress and tore the tongue of slender from the throats of those who had defamed his honor, Proctor Knott was not in a condition to go any farther with the investigation, and the Times knows it. On that famous afternoon Blaine spread consternation among his slanderers. With the power of truth on his side, with justice in his cause, and with a dramatic effort that had never before been seen in the American congress, he put to flight the democratic house, and that ended the Knott investigation.

Something a thousand times more powerful than a snuffbox did it, and the Times is not ignorant of the fact.

The Madison Democrat, speaking of the republican state ticket, prints these lines:

So, these very respectable gentlemen will, before November, be writing as their political epithets, dragged down by Blaine.

Yes, "dragged down by Blaine," like the republican ticket in Vermont was the other day, when he received 3,000 or 4,000 greater majority than the candidate did in 1882. The brag and bluster of the Democrat will not count in this campaign, Wisconsin will go republican. There is strength in the party and strength in the ticket, and both will be drawn out to their fullest test next November. The time has not come when the people of Wisconsin are ready to turn the state government over to the democratic party.

The strong sense of the intelligent voter will prevail in this campaign, and will elect Governor Rank and every member of the ticket. This is the republican programme, and will the Madison Democrat chalk it down?

Mr. Carl Schurz has made the statement that one of the reasons he wants the republican party to go is that it is getting corrupt. Mr. Schurz knows as well as every intelligent man knows, that he slanders the party that has honored him with all the places of profit and trust he ever obtained in this country. Let him look at the record, and he will find these two very important facts—they are official and not unbecoming:

1. That no other man on the face of the globe has paid a public debt so faithfully or rapidly as the public debt of the United States has been paid by the republican party since the close of the war. It was then $2,750,000,000, and is now less than $1,400,000,000.

2. The ratio of amounts lost or stolen to the receipts and disbursements of the government is less than 10 cents on $100, whereas under the last democratic administration it was $381, and under Martin Van Buren's, $1,171. No other party in the whole history of the country has ever conducted the government with as little loss to the treasury, from official negligence or misconduct as has occurred since the republican party came into power, and its record in that particular has been one of steady improvement, each administration surpassing all that have preceded.

These are solemn figures which Mr.

Schurz and no other man can break.

DIED IN HARNESS.

Charles J. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury, Rests from His Labors.

His Death Probably Hastened by Overwork—Reception of the News at Washington—His Public Services.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Hon. Charles J.

Folger, secretary of the treasury of the United States, died at his home here at 4:45

Thursday afternoon. He had been restoring overwork for several weeks, and his travels were not appreciated for the news of his death.

Charles James Folger was born in Nantucket, Mass., April 10, 1819. When he was 12 years old he moved with his parents to Geneva. He graduated with honors at the Geneva college in 1839, and soon after commenced the study of law in Canandaigua.

After three years he was admitted to the bar of the supreme court, and entered the study of law in Canandaigua.

In 1841 he was elected secretary of the state of New York, and in 1842 he was appointed judge of the Ontario county and held that office four years.

In those days Judge Folger was known as a Democrat, but disapproved of his party on the slavery question, he allied himself with the Republicans and has since been one of the leaders of his party in the state. In 1851 he was elected to the state senate, and was re-elected in 1853, 1855 and 1857.

When his senatorial term expired in 1857

President Grant appointed him United States attorney at New York, which office he held until 1870 when he was elected judge of the court of appeals. In May, 1880, Governor Cornell designated him as chief justice to fill a vacancy, and he was afterward promulated and elected as such in the fall of the same year.

In October, 1881, he was appointed secretary of the treasury, which office he took charge of on Nov. 14, and held it at the time of his death. On Sept. 2, 1884, he was nominated at New York to the office of governor, but was defeated at the polls.

In public office he was painstaking and conscientious, and his personal attention to details which properly belonged to his subordinates has probably hastened his death.

The News at Washington City.

WASHINGTON CITY, Sept. 5.—A meeting of the bureau chiefs of the treasury department was held Thursday morning at the assistant secretary to take action relating to the death of Secretary Folger. C. E.

Coon, assistant secretary, presiding. It was decided to close the treasury department and to await the executive order to close the department on the day of his funeral. The meeting adjourned for the evening, and suitable resolutions to the memory of Secretary Folger will be adopted at another meeting. The executive order to close the treasury department was received by Assistant Secretary Coon from John Lewis, the body servant of the secretary, and simply stated that Secretary Folger died about a week without giving any particular details.

Assistant Secretary Coon said that he has received several letters recently from Secretary Folger in which he wrote rather despondingly. In one alluding to the burden of the work in the department he said that he was about useless, still he would push his trunk and return to duty if he (Coon) felt that too much was laid upon him.

In another he remarked that he was in a miserable plight, while in a third letter he wrote of his abrupt departure from the treasury, and that he was not at all sorry to leave it.

Other letters received since were disheartened, and while containing clear directions concerning the departmental matters, also conveyed the intelligence inserted by the writer that the —People's Lodge No. 400, I. O. G. T., meet this evening in Court street M. E. church block. A full attendance of members is requested.

—The Evening Wisconsin: The quarterly payment of pensions is progressing at the Milwaukee office. There are about 16,000 pensioners in the district.
—The steamer Enterprise will run every hour, this evening to accommodate parties who may desire to attend the dance by moonlight at Pope's Springs.
—A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend the lawn social at the residence of Mr. J. C. Echlin, Friday evening, Sept. 5th. Ice cream will be served by the young ladies of the congregational church.
—News reaches this city that Mr. H. Will Lake was married on September 3d, at Independence, Iowa, to Mrs. May Z. Landner, of Independence. Mr. Lake's many friends in Janesville will extend congratulations.

—The Nashville colored church choir arrived this noon, and will appear at Lippin's music hall this evening. Manager Anderson says the company has had a very successful season. They should be greeted by a full house this evening.

—The Rockford Gazette: "Carl Schurz will speak in Rockford on Friday, September 12th, in behalf of Cleveland and Hendricks. Mr. Schurz' cash price is $250 per speech, but we learn his visit here will cost our local democratic friends nothing."

—With the temperature at 90 in the shade on the fifth of September, it is no wonder that a picnic party draws a large crowd. The little steamer Enterprise has been making hourly trips to Pope's Springs all day. This evening there will be a dance at the springs, to which the public is invited.

—A delivery wagon collided with a load of sawdust at the corner of Main and North First streets this afternoon, and spilled out the contents, which consisted of a small boy and some packages. The boy was slightly scratched, but not seriously injured. Prompt action of the spectators prevented a runaway.

—The Madison Journal of last evening, speaking of the torch light procession on the evening of the 3d, says: "The marching of the Janesville company was especially noticeable for its excellence, its members evidently being thoroughly drilled and well posted in the manual of arms, as their various maneuvers fully evinced."

—The United States Express Company have recently adopted the same money order system which has been in use by the American express company for the past two years, and are now prepared to sell orders to all points covered by their lines. The express money order system is found to be very convenient and is being liberally patronized in all parts of the country.

—Mr. Wm. Cody, an employee in the blacksmith shop of the Janesville machine company, met with an accident last evening by which he narrowly escaped the loss of an eye, it not his life. He was operating a largestest punching machine in the shop, the bar which he was feeding to the machine becoming out of place when the die struck it, turned, and of course spring the tool in such a manner as to throw it out of line, and when the die came down, it broke, a piece flew back like a shot from a gun, striking Mr. Cody on the nose at the outer corner of the right eye, following the skull back as far as the ear, making an ugly scalp wound. The wound was dressed and he is at work as usual this morning.

—There was considerable excitement in the neighborhood of the Myers house at eight o'clock this morning, by a report being spread that Mr. Peter Myers, the proprietor of the hotel, had fallen on the stairs, and that he was bleeding to death. On visiting the hotel we discovered a large pool of blood near the clerk's desk, and upon inquiry, learned that Mr. Myers, while in the act of pulling on his boots, burst one of the large veins in his right leg, between the knee and foot, and before those near him could stop the flow, he lost several gallons of blood. Mr. C. S. Jackson was at the clerk's desk when the accident occurred, and he on discovering the flow of blood by tying a handkerchief in a cord around the leg, but before he succeeded, Drs. D. Robinson and L. J. Barrows, who were in the dining room, were called, and the further loss of blood prevented. Mr. Myers was taken to his room in a very weak condition, but at last accounts this afternoon was doing well, and it is hoped nothing more serious will result.

The Funeral of the Late John B. Carle.

The funeral of the late John B. Carle took place at his late residence, Linn street, fifth ward, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was attended by a very large number of sympathizing friends of the deceased and family, and by many of the old and prominent citizens of this city, who called to pay their last and respectful respects to one they had known for over thirty years, and had been on such friendly and intimate terms in life. The members of Oak Hill cemetery association, of which the deceased was president, also attended in a body. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful, especially the pillow, double cross and crown. Rev. W. F. Brown, of the Presbyterian church, offered divine supplication, followed by Presiding Elder Lagg, of the Methodist church, who read the beautiful ritual service. Rev. C. B. Wilcox, of Court Street Methodist church, made a brief discourse on the life and character of the deceased, showing wherein he had been a successful business man, a prominent and enterprising citizen and a lifelong, thorough christian gentleman. The musical selections, being especially touching and appropriate, were sung by a quartet consisting of Mrs. J. W. St. John, Miss Fannie Ray, Mr. Clarence L. Clark and Mr. N. Smith. At the conclusion of these solemn services the remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for burial, followed by a very large concourse of citizens. The pall bearers were Colonel Z. P. Burdick, Captain W. D. Cargill, Messrs. Abraham Phelps, A. J. Ray, Andrew Palmer, and J. B. Hume.

The Gazette wishes to correct the statement in the obituary notice of the deceased, that he remained unconscious until death. Such was not the fact, as he retained his consciousness until a few moments previous to his end.

The Sheridan Race.

Prominent among the attractions at Geneva Lake is the "Sheridan yacht race," which occurs every year on the last Saturday in August. The first prize consists of a solid silver yacht about ten inches in length, and fifty dollars in money. The second is a cash prize of fifty dollars, and the third a cash prize of thirty dollars. Fifteen yachts were entered for the race this year. The day was perfect, and with a good stiff north-west breeze the little fleet came down the lake under full spread of canvas accompanied by a dozen steamers, gaily decorated with bunting, presenting a scene that was inspiring and fully appreciated by the guests at the numerous camps on either shore. Floating at the bow of a little boat anchored in the bay half a mile south of Fontana park was noticed a white flag, which was recognized as the stake boat at the turn, and nine miles away at the opposite end of the lake a similar flag denoted the starting point and finish of the race. By eleven o'clock in the morning the boats were all under way and an hour later the little bay at the foot of the lake was dotted with white sails. The "Blossom" was the first to round the stake boat, and as she straightened up before the wind and sped away on the home stretch under all the canvas she could carry, it was evident that she would make a desperate effort for the first prize, but the "Whisper" and "Ethel" are not far behind and as the white spray splashes over their decks the race becomes exciting, and the three yachts are watched with intense interest, gradually but surely the two last named boats gain on the "Blossom" and round the home stake thirty seconds apart in the order named leaving the "Blossom" third money. The little silver yacht is transferred to the "Whisper," which she will hold until another year and then contest for it again as the rules of the Yachting club demand that it must be won three successive years before it can be retained. The "Theatrical" in rounding the stake boat in the bay, was struck by a squall and upset. Her crew of five men climbed up on the side, but the boat contained about fifteen hundred pounds of ballast and in less than a minute they sank in thirty feet of water. They were all good swimmers and were picked up by small boats apparently none the worse for a bath. The Sheridan race is the closing attraction of the season at Geneva Lake as most of the parks close early in September. Fontana Park, however, will be open until the first of October, and picnic and excursion parties may be found there almost every day of the present month. The "Porters" are very popular and have done much to make Fontana Park the most attractive camping-ground on the shores of the most beautiful lake in the state.

The Black Bass Fishing.

The black bass fishing is unusually fine during the month of September, and lovers of the "rod and fly" will find everything to their liking at Fontana Park.

W. C. T. U.

The members of the W. C. T. U. call attention of parents, especially the mothers in Janesville, to the importance of working for temperance in our own city. It is not more than idle for citizens, whether men or women, to shut their eyes to the dangers which beset the youth around us, and take no responsibility in the matter of guarding against them. As mothers, wives, sisters and daughters, there is work to do. All cannot operate in the same channel, but there is a common starting point, and a common objective view, a common foe to be subjugated, a foe who knows nothing of caste, who cares not who his victim may be, whose heart is wrong, whose home is ruined, whose lives are wrecked or whose priceless souls are lost.

There are those who suffer in silence and whose woes are no secret. Can we do nothing to stay this slaughter of our dearest hopes? Many do work and pray quietly among their own; a few have banded themselves together in the hope of accomplishing greater results by joining their forces and reaching out united hands and sending up united prayers to Him who hears the cry of His children.

There are happy homes where the bread of the destroyer has never been felt in its desolating power; alas! there are others of which the same could have been said in the years gone by, when now the blighting effect is terribly manifest. Must this go on and we not hold out the helping hand and offer the encouraging word as we have opportunity? Might we not save some? But above all, the hope of our country is in the children, and Janesville children are as dear and worth as much to our land as those of any other community. The little ones are rapidly growing up into young people who are continually taking their places as men and women of business and society. Have we nothing to say and do in forming characters which shall do good work in the world? Can we not insure this most certainly by instilling into their early impressions and retentive minds, those principles which shall prove foundations for the superstructures of noble men and women? This we are trying to do by supplementing the instruction given in our public schools and Sunday schools, with special teaching as to the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and telling them how to avoid the temptations which threaten them. Will not the women of Janesville think of this work and send their children to the school. Come themselves and help in this branch and bring their wisdom and experience to the councils for all departments of christian temperance work.

After a month of rest, we reopen the school on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 6th, at a quarter to three o'clock. The regular W. C. T. U. meeting will follow immediately at the close of the school at four o'clock.

—Mr. John Van Halder, who has been employed as agent for the Catholic Citizens in Wisconsin for the past year, will make a two months' trip through Iowa in the interest of the Citizen. Our subscribers will find Mr. Van Halder gentlemanly and trustworthy in his dealings, and we recommend him to the good will of the clergy of the state, among whom the Citizen is well received. Before proceeding to Iowa, Mr. Van Halder will call upon our subscribers at Janesville, Wis., and make collections.

We clip the above from the Catholic Citizen of this week. Mr. Van Halder is a gentleman and an ardent believer in the success of the Republican ticket this fall. He says that many subscribers of the Citizen are enthusiastic supporters of Blaine and Logan.

The Rag Market.

Nearly every family in the country is more or less interested in rags, therefore the following item on the rag market taken from the Evening Wisconsin, will be of interest to all: "A Wisconsin reporter visited William Franzen, the East Water street rag and paper stock dealer, this morning, and asked him if the embargo which has been laid upon the importation of foreign rags into the United States, and which is to continue during the ensuing three months, is likely to seriously advance the price of rags. The embargo, an outcome of the recent cholera scare, Mr. Franzen said: 'I don't think it will make much difference. There is an immense stock of rags in the country, and the time during which the importation of foreign rags is prohibited is not long. The market for woolen rags is very much depressed, prices having fallen off fully one-half since the reduction of the tariff on wool went into effect. A year ago the different grades of woolen rags ranged from 3 1/2 cents to 12 cents per pound. To-day the range is 1 cent to 5 1/2 cents. Cotton rags range from 1 1/2 to 4 cents per pound—about the same as a year ago. Ordinary mixed rags are now worth $1.75 to $1.90 per 100 pounds. With the market for woolen rags in its present condition, a slight advance in the price of cotton rags might take place without materially affecting the price of country mixed rags. Rags are coming in very slowly from the interior at present, the farmers being so fully occupied with agricultural work that rag collections are slow. But the movement may be expected to increase from this time on. There is a fair margin of profit for the country shipper at present prices. Ordinary mixed rags are commanding what has been the average price for the past three years."

Killed by the Cars.

The Racine Journal of last evening says: "Prosper Humbert, of Caldwell's Prairie, one of the vice presidents of the Wisconsin industrial association, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon, at the Janesville crossing of the Northwestern railroad, near Milwaukee, also James Pitcher, who was in his company. The two men were crossing the track at the above named point, with a team of horses attached to a wagon loaded with coal, when the 2:30 train dashed around a bend, and the locomotive struck the wagon with terrific force. The two men were hurled from the wagon and thrown several feet in the air. Mr. Humbert was instantly killed, and his companion only lived a few moments. The two horses were also killed. Mr. Humbert was one of the best known sheep breeders in the State of Wisconsin, and his death will be lamented by every farmer in Racine county. He was elected a vice president of the Wisconsin Industrial Association, at the first meeting, and it was his intention to be here to-morrow and witness the great show and trot of Jay-Eye-See and Phalaris.

Dog Show.

Of this entertainment the Des Moines Register speaks in these complimentary terms:

"Prof. Morris and his trained dogs drew one of the largest audiences of the season at Foster's opera house last evening. The little people of the city have been on the tip of their toes of expectation for several days as they have had glimpses of these wonderful dogs, and many older persons, as well, have waited for the show with much interest. The high anticipations were fully realized, for the performance was simply wonderful. The sagacity and intelligence displayed by the different dogs was very remarkable, and some of their acts indicated long and patient labor on the part of their trainer. The appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Schindler and their baby 'Buddy' was the signal for boisterous applause, and their graceful walking was greatly admired. Major, the clown dog, keeps up an unlimited amount of fun with his clever antics, and the dog that walked the tight rope was the wonder of the evening. One interesting feature followed another in quick succession, and the audience was more than pleased with the entertainment."

A Monster Painting.

The Milwaukee exposition management has prepared a pleasant surprise for visitors to the coming exhibition. A small army of men have been busy for the past two weeks, under lock and key, in the great conservatory attached to the building, and the nature of their mysterious work has just been made public. A monster panorama painting is being prepared. The great canvas is 125 feet long and 45 feet wide, arranged in semi-circular form with a realistic foreground so artfully arranged that from the observation gallery, which is elevated some 12 feet, the eye cannot distinguish where the foreground ends and the painting begins. The subject is the Battle of Lookout Mountain, wherein so many Wisconsin soldiers were engaged, and where Robert Canas laid down his life with many other gallant men whose names are on the roll of honor of the Badger state. The artists were sent direct to Tennessee, and the sketches from which the great picture is being painted, were taken on the battle-ground. These, with the aid of military maps and information obtained through the courtesy of the state and war departments, and by the kindness of prominent officers of both armies who took part in the famous battle, insure an accurate representation of one of the most stirring actions of the late war. Veterans will readily recognize the familiar landmarks, and note again the beautiful scenery which met their eyes on that memorable November day.

The artists are at work without intermission, and the exposition opening day, Sept. 13th, will find the great work complete and ready for exhibition.
